GERMAN U-BOAT OFF U. S. COAST

"From Newport," Signalled the Submarine.

WARSHIP FLEET IS NEAR

Submersible Was Sighted 200 Miles East of New York—United States to Patrol Coast.

A German submarine identifying herself as such by wireless, and saying she was "from Newport," was sighted Tuesday, more than 100 miles east of Nantucket light ship, by a neutral ship now at New York, it became known.

The submarine was moving in an easterly direction. The submarine was sighted some distance from the neutral vessel, which was questioned by wireless from the submarine as to her name and nationality. It was given, and the question asked in turn: "Who are you?"

"German submarine from Newport, good-bye," was the reply. The assumption was that she was the U-53, responsible for the shipping raid of Sunday. The U-53 was last sighted prior to that time by the Greek steamship Patris, Monday morning.

Neutrality regulations of the nation whose flag the ship flies, and specific orders with respect to their observance are given for withholding the name of the ship bringing the report, but it is vouched for as correct by a high marine authority.

A fleet of foreign cruisers and destroyers is off the American coast, according to Captain Linderoos, of the Russian steamship Hesperus, which arrived from Huelva, Spain. To the pilot who boarded the vessel, Captain Linderoos said "a lot of cruisers and destroyers" passed his vessel off Cape Sable, Wednesday, heading southwest. At the rate of speed he said, they must be off the coast by now.

The Hesperus' captain had not heard of the German submarine's raid off Nantucket Shoals, Sunday, as there is no wireless equipment on his ship.

Belief that they were British destroyers was he held many water front authorities who connected their appearance with the fact that it was only Thursday British vessels at this port moved out, after being held since the submarine raid. British destroyers, they argued, came to act as convoys for the ships.

U. S. Warships Patrol Coast.

A far-flung patrol of torpedo-boat destroyers, charged with the double duty of enforcing neutrality observance and saving lives in event of further submarine raids on shipping off these shores, was put into effect from Bar Harbor, Me., to New York.

Official authority for the statement that such a patrol had been ordered by the navy department, was obtained.

The limits of surveillance, at present effective, were shown with the arrival of the destroyer Paulding off Bar Harbor, and the activity of the destroyer Sterrett in New York harbor. Between these outposts, nine other destroyers are weaving a net of observation that extends considerable distance out to sea, well beyond the lines of coastwise vessels.

URGE USE OF POTATO FLOUR

Specialists Say It Is Just as Nutritious and Keeps Fresh Longer.

More general use of potatoes in making bread is recommended by the baking specialists of the department of agriculture.

Bread containing boiled and mashed potatoes was found during experiments, just concluded, to be just as nutritious as ordinary bread and to have the quality of remaining fresh longer.

The department believes that in localities where there is a surplus of potatoes, or where they are cheap, much economy can be practiced at this time because of the high price of wheat flour, and that even in localities where the relative market prices of potatoes and flour are such that there is no economy in substituting potatoes for flour, the individual flavor and keeping quality of potato bread should make it desirable as a variant in the family diet.

Bread Up 11 Per Cent.

Bread prices increased 11 per cent from May 15 to September 15—and since then have been climbing steadily, the bureau of labor statistics reported. Also, the bureau found the size of the loaf has been shrinking. Wheat prices rose during the period thirty-four per cent; whole-wheat flour prices, thirty-seven per cent, and retail flour prices, twenty-three per cent.

SHOOTS STATE TROOPER

Long Sought Robbery Suspect Wounds Officer and Escapes.

Wilmer Albright, aged twenty-four, wanted on the charge of attempting to rob the bank book factory at Roaring Spring, was cornered in his home at Roaring Spring, near Altoona, Pa., by three members of the state constabulary and shot and seriously wounded one of them, Joseph Merrifield, aged twenty-six, who blocked his path when he attempted to escape. Merrifield is in the Nason hospital at Roaring Spring and will recover. Albright had been sought since last summer, when he escaped from officers.

Albright first tried to escape by the front door and fired twice with a revolver at the trooper standing guard, but the shots went wild. He dashed out the rear door and discharged both barrels of a shotgun at Merrifield, riddling him with bird shot from head to foot. The most serious wound is to the left eye, which is badly torn. The shot did not penetrate the flesh deeply.

Before Troopers Lawrence Dunbar and Andrew Dawitichy could apprehend him, Albright fled. Sheriff Holland and a posse of officers are scouring the country for the fugitive.

SHOOTS WIFE, SON AND SELF

Miner Wounds Woman, Infant and Kills Himself.

Tony Sorgurill, a miner at Arrow, near Johnstown, Pa., shot his wife and infant son she was holding in her arms and then fired a bullet through his brain, dying instantly. Mrs. Sorgurill sustained only a wound through the left breast, while the same bullet perforated the intestines of the infant, which will die.

Sorgurill was crazed with liquor. He had not worked for several days. Just before the tragedy he had appeared in the doorway of his home, a beer glass in one hand and a revolver in the other. Tossing off the beer, he said, "Good-bye, boys; this is the last."

Entering his home, he fired the shots.

Austrian attacks in the same region were driven back, it is added. Italian troops, the statement says, also have made considerable progress on the Carso plateau, where there has been heavy fighting during the past few days.

BIG AIR ATTACK ON TEUTONGUNPLANT

Forty Allied Aeroplanes Were in the Raid.

FIGHT ENEMY MACHINES

Anglo-French Airmen Drop Four Tons of Explosives on Rifle Factory at Oberndorf.

Forty French and British aeroplanes dropped four tons of explosives on the Mauser gun works at Oberndorf, in Germany, on the Neckar river, the Paris war office announced.

Six German machines defending the works were shot down. Heavy artillery fighting took place on the Somme front. The Paris official announcement says the bombardment was particularly severe in the regions of Morval, Bouchavesnes, Ablaincourt and Chauleux.

Progress for the British in Thursday's fighting on the Somme was announced in an official statement. The advances were scored between Gueudecourt. Some 150 Germans were made prisoners.

Brought Down 9 Planes, Says Berlin.

"Our aviators successfully attacked strong enemy squadrons on their way to south Germany, and, supported by our anti-aircraft guns, brought down nine aeroplanes," the Berlin war office statement says.

"According to the reports at hand, five persons were killed and twenty six wounded by bombs which were dropped. The material damage was slight. No damage was done to military establishments."

A great attempt of the French and British forces on the Somme front to break through the German lines resulted in failure, the war office says. Six assaults near Sally were repulsed. The battle continues.

"Brandenburg infantry received dense British columns northwest of Gueudecourt with a devastating fire," the statement says. "South of the Somme French attacks between Fresnoes and Mazancourt and in the vicinity of Chauleux were continued. They died down for the greater part under our curtain of fire. Stubborn fighting, which ended in our favor, again developed for possession of the sugar refinery of Genemont. The main portion of Albaincourt remained in our possession after a fierce struggle. In the course of the latest battles we captured here about 200 French, including fourteen officers."

"A new attempt of the French and British on a large scale to break through our line between the Ancre and the Somme failed completely. The enemy employed massed artillery and infantry reinforced with fresh reserves in the effort to achieve his object. The brave troops of Generals Sixt von Arnim, von Boehn and von Garnier maintained their positions unshaken after heavy fighting."

"The main weight of the numerous attacks were directed against the front from Courcellette to St. Pierre Vaast wood. Bitter hand-to-hand fighting developed repeatedly in our lines with those of the enemy who temporarily penetrated our positions."

FOUR KILLED IN STRIKE RIOT

Police Charge Oil Workers in Bayonne, N. J.

MANY FIRES WERE STARTED

Twenty-five Wounded in Pitched Battle After Reign of Terror—Merchants Appeal for Protection.

Four men were killed and twenty-five wounded, four so seriously that they may die, in a battle between oil strikers and the police in Bayonne, N. J.

All of the dead were bystanders who, out of curiosity, followed a rifle-armed force of 185 regular and volunteer police into the danger zone.

Shots from the strikers flew over the heads of the police and struck down the spectators. Two hours after the opening of the conflict, the fight still was raging. During the fray a torch was applied to the Consumers' Coal and Ice company building, one of the largest plants in Bayonne. The fire made rapid headway and the proximity of the burning structure to the Standard Oil plant caused fear for the safety of the latter.

As the police entered the strike district, they were met by a shower of missiles from roofs and doorways. They immediately opened fire, which was returned by the strikers. In the interchange of shots one man was killed instantly and twelve strikers were wounded. They were removed to Bayonne hospital. The dead man was a bystander, who was identified as Isadore Nalitzky, twenty-two years old, recently admitted to the bar.

Two wounded bystanders gave their names as Horace Martin and Edward Green. Martin was shot in the back and Green through the body.

None of the policemen were wounded. The regulars were supported by eighty-five specials.

After the first volley, the strikers, who had advanced into the open, scattered again, leaving the twelve victims behind. Others, whose injuries were slighter, were helped into nearby houses.

Enraged by the battle with rifle-armed police, in which one woman was killed and many wounded, the thousands of Standard Oil company strikers made the night a season of terror for Bayonne.

Fires were started at many places in the city, frequent exchanges of shots between marauders and police occurred, stores and saloons were looted. As the day wore on, these disorders increased.

The Constable Hook section was in absolute control of the strikers. They organized their own police force, and city officials countenanced the volunteer patrol plan.

Without assistance from the police, the Central Railroad of New Jersey captured its station on Twenty-second street. A force of its special police swooped down on the building, clubbed the strikers' garrison out and re-established communication with the city.

Meantime merchants and business men are joining in a protest to the city authorities against the reign of violence.

Dogs Find Girls' Body.

As George King hunted in the thickets of Locust Mountain, near Mahanoy City, Pa., his attention was called by his barking hunting dogs to a body which lay in the copse.

It proved to be that of Miss Eliza Beth Bronk, eighteen years, who had been missing from her home a week by her side lay an empty bottle which had contained poison. Her lips were horribly burned.

A note received from Miss Bronk by Miss Myra Richardson, a nurse at the State hospital, at Fountain Springs read:

"Dear Myra: By the time you receive this note I will be dead. I am disgusted with living. Don't show this letter to any one."

"ELIZABETH."

Posse Seeks Brute.

Midvale and Coatesville, Pa., police and a posse of citizens are searching the hills for a negro who attacked Mary, a five-year-old daughter of Joseph Gobenkski, in the northwestern part of the city.

The little girl was brutally abused and required medical attention.

The child and companions were playing with their rag dolls beneath an oak tree when the negro came along. He picked the child up in his arms and carried her to a woods nearby.

Companions saw the negro take the child away, and they informed her mother, who sent word to the Midvale police. By the time the police arrived the child was coming across the field. She was crying bitterly. Men joined in the hunt for the negro.

Grip on Boy Spreads Virus.

Edward J., six-year-old son of James Davis, of Wilkins township, near Pittsburgh, Pa., has died at his home from lockjaw.

According to Dr. Edward J. Meley, of Turtle Creek, the infection was probably caused by a vaccination on his arm being reopened.

Before the opening of the school term the boy was vaccinated and when school opened last Monday the boy's arm was just healing. When the line of pupils was forming the boy got out of line, and one of the teachers is said to have grasped him by the arm, shaking him. In doing so she tore open the sore and the arm became infected.

Set Fire to Girl's Dress.

Six-year-old Marian Moskowitz was playing in Porter street near Seventh, Philadelphia, when a boy came along and began to tease her.

He lighted a match and chased the little girl across the street. Then he threw the match at her. It caught her dress and set it afire. Screaming, she ran to her home at 710 Porter street.

Her mother hurriedly wrapped the hall rug about the little girl and put out the flames. But her legs and body were so severely burned that it was said at St. Agnes hospital she would die. The police cannot learn the name of the boy who threw the match.

Strangles School Girl.

Strangled with her own bookstrap, Tullie Brown, an eleven-year-old schoolgirl, was found dead in the cellar of a Monroe street tenement on the lower East Side, New York.

The girl failed to return from school. The only clue the police have was furnished by an uncle of the girl. He reported that last Thursday he saw a strange man purchasing candy for the child at a street stand near the school she attended. The police say they have a good description of the stranger.

Chokes to Death on Bone.

Joseph Lehman, Sr., aged seventy-five years, residing with his son, Joseph Lehman, Jr., in Springbury township, near York Pa., choked to death on the wishbone of a chicken.

Mr. Lehman was eating dinner with the family and swallowed a large piece of "white meat." Suddenly the family were horrified to see him strangling and before a doctor could be summoned he died.

Colored Man Lynched.

Frank Dodd, a colored prisoner held on a charge of having annoyed a young white woman, was taken from the county jail at Dewitt, Ark., by a mob of three hundred men and hanged from a tree in the outskirts of the town.
